The forces behind the future of biotechnology are the science teachers who are inspiring America's students to learn about the promise and achievements of biotechnology.

Be a part of the celebration honoring these inspired and inspiring educators and the students they are teaching as the Biotechnology Institute recognizes the winners of:

- The Genzyme-Invitrogen Biotech Educator Award
- The Lilly BioDreaming Poster Competition

Join biotechnology industry colleagues and other supporters of biotechnology education and meet the rising stars of biotechnology and the teachers who inspired their passion and imagination!

Keynote speaker, The Honorable Margaret Spellings, U.S. Secretary of Education, will share her thoughts on the importance of education as the foundation of the innovation that fuels the dynamic biotechnology industry. She will call for partnerships between the biotechnology companies, nonprofit organizations, and the education community in order for the United States to compete in today's global economy.
